Monthly Step, Tradition, and Concept

STEP EIGHT

Made a list of all persons we had harmed, and became willing to make amends to them all.

TRADITION EIGHT

Overeaters Anonymous should remain forever non-professional, but our service centers may employ special workers.

CONCEPT EIGHT

The Board of Trustees has delegated to its Executive Committee the responsibility to administer the OA World Service Office.

Meet Karen S.

Region 3's Treasurer

Karen's path to Overeaters Anonymous began 12 years ago in an unexpected place: her first Al-Anon meeting, 15 years ago. Standing at the literature table, she was asked how she was doing. Out popped the truth: "I am using my drug of choice—food." The woman beside her replied, "I know where you need to be," and told her about OA.

Karen attended her first OA meeting a few days later, but she didn't stay. When her sponsor left, Karen decided she didn't need the program. Three years later, she returned—and service at the meeting and intergroup levels helped her become connected. She hasn't left since.

Early in recovery, Karen questioned whether she belonged or really was a compulsive eater. Her sponsor observed, "I don't think 'normal' people sit around wondering whether they are compulsive eaters." Karen realized that her obsessive thinking about food was itself the answer.

Recovery and service are dismantling Karen's belief that she must do everything herself. Service reinforces that she can ask for help—and help others. It also lets her practice principles before personalities. Members may differ, but they share a purpose: helping the still-suffering compulsive eater.

Karen wishes more people understood that struggles with food and body image are not moral or willpower issues. They are not signs of laziness, badness, or a lack of intelligence. For Karen, food is only a symptom of a spiritual ailment—a God-shaped hole that only God can fill.

Outside OA, Karen finds joy in family and service. One surprising blessing is the close friendship she and her husband share with her ex-husband's parents. They even co-owned a cabin in Utah. Others may find it unusual; Karen considers it a gift.

Karen is also a CASA—a Court Appointed Special Advocate—for a brother and sister in foster care. Assigned through the court system, she will have served on their case for two years on August 19. The children, now five and seven, are living with a family completing the steps to adopt them, with the adoption expected in October. Karen sees this as another way to serve and make a difference in their lives. She initially didn't want to take on the role, but she couldn't stop thinking about signing up and sensed God directing her to say yes. The experience has taught her about herself and helped her grow. She believes she has made a difference in the children's lives, and she is deeply grateful.

Today, Karen describes her recovery as “perfectly imperfect.” Connecting with God every day is vital to her program. She no longer fantasizes about graduating from OA or being finished. She does the next right thing, turns to her sponsor, and keeps coming back.

To anyone suffering but afraid to reach out, Karen offers a simple truth: together we get better. Sharing what troubles her with others brings relief. The fears—“What if I bother them? What if they don't like me?”—are lies her mind uses to keep her isolated. Fellows are glad to lend an ear and perhaps share a laugh.

As Region 3 Treasurer, Karen hopes her example encourages others to serve. To her, the Seventh Tradition means far more than financial contributions. OA remains fully self-supporting when members offer their time, energy, and talents.

Meet Kelli F.

Las Vegas OA Intergroup's NEW Region Rep

Kelli once believed weight-loss surgery would solve all her problems. Instead, the supposedly simple and easy procedure went seriously wrong, and she nearly died. Devastated and desperate, she felt she had nowhere to turn.

Then she saw how Overeaters Anonymous had worked for others. She found a sponsor, began working the Steps, and slowly developed an abstinence she could follow. With those actions came something she desperately needed: hope.

As Kelli continued working the Steps, she began to understand that accepting a situation did not mean approving of it. She also recognized how expectations of others had contributed to her disappointments. Those realizations helped lift her resentments and remove a weight from her shoulders, clearing the way for further recovery.

Today, recovery means practicing self-love, honesty, abstinence, and compassion. It also means improving her conscious contact with a Higher Power, seeking knowledge of that Higher Power's will and the strength to carry it out.

Service has become an important part of that recovery. Kelli who recently moved from Los Angeles to Las Vegas stepped into the role of Region Representative for the Las Vegas OA Intergroup because she wanted a deeper connection with the OA community. "To continue recovering from compulsive overeating, I needed an additional connection to this community," she explains. "Service strengthens the program." Through service, Kelli has developed greater compassion for others—and for herself. It keeps her involved in OA on a deeper level while giving her another way to carry the message of recovery.

Kelli wishes more people understood just how common struggles with food and body image are. Those who suffer may believe they are different or alone, but Kelli knows otherwise. "We are not alone," she says. "It's critical to carry the message of recovery, as suggested in Step Twelve." To someone who is suffering but afraid to reach out, Kelli would offer reassurance: You are precious. Love yourself. You are not alone, and people are here to help. Your Higher Power is here for you. There is no need to compare yourself with others because everyone's recovery is individual.

Outside OA, Kelli stays grounded through meditation, swimming, music, laughter, gardening, and time with her pets. She also finds joy in simply being in awe of nature. When she thinks about the people who shaped her most as a leader, she looks to her parents and grandparents.

As the Las Vegas Intergroup's new Region Representative, Kelli hopes her service will support the recovery of others—and perhaps encourage someone else to consider this kind of service in the future. What does accepting this position mean to Kelli at this point in her journey? Her answer is brief, direct, and powerful: “I’m taking the program seriously.”

Intergroup Service Offers Many Ways to Help

—One of them may be just right for you.

Your Intergroup needs more than people who attend meetings. It needs people willing to bring their experience, ideas, energy—and sometimes simply their willingness—to service.

You don't have to be an expert. You don't have to know exactly what to do before you begin. Most trusted servants learn from those who served before them, receive support along the way, and discover strengths they didn't know they had.

Could you serve as an Intergroup Chair, Vice Chair, Secretary, Treasurer, World Service Delegate, or Region Representative? Perhaps one of the committees is calling you: IR Trainer, Meeting List, Website, Zoom, Newsletter, PIPO, TSW, Retreat, Special Events, or the Diversity Community.

There are opportunities for organizers, encouragers, writers, listeners, number-lovers, computer-comfortable people—and those who are simply willing to learn.

Attend your next Intergroup meeting. Ask where help is needed. Raise your hand. You may discover that service gives back even more than it asks.
